About the Celtic Music Directory

The Celtic Music Directory is a work-in-progress. In 2000, I started the Great Celtic CD Giveaway to promote my band, the Brobdingnagian Bards. I gave away dozens of prizes and then continued the giveaway with a free CD every month.

A few months later, I started up the Celtic MP3s.com Song of the Week ezine and started giving away a free CD in that newsletter too. But the main thing the Celtic Muse allowed me to do is meet more Celtic bands. So I decided as long as I am meeting all these bands and I'm finding lots of Celtic music-lovers through my ezine, why not bring the two together? So that's what I've done.

The goal of this directory is to help Celtic music lovers find Celtic musicians in their area. I put it together in this eBook for easy distribution by artists and websites. It's something I encourage everyone to share with his or her friends.

Right now, the directory is small. But with your help, we can get it out to more and more people. I plan to update the directory monthly until it is up to a decent size. So drop by CelticMP3s.com so you can download the latest copy to giveaway.

One Final Note: If you do decide to give this eBook away to your fans, customers, visitors, please drop me an email so that I can tell you when the latest update is available. Thanks a million for your help and your interest in Celtic music. Slainte'!

Site Name: Mysts of Avalon
Contact: Walt Haake
E-mail: walt@themistsofavalon.com
URL: <http://www.themistsofavalon.com/>

Description: Avalon is a mystical realm of ages past and a source of enchantment for all times. It was the Isle of Avalon where King Arthur's magical sword Excalibur was forged, and where he was brought for his wounds to be healed following his final battle. The Celtic, Medieval, Renaissance and folk music heard on The Mists of Avalon is rooted in this realm, and derives, perhaps, some of its powers of enchantment from the same source that forged the sword of Arthur. The radio program takes its name from the novel by Marion Zimmer Bradley, who renewed Arthurian legend by telling it from the standpoint of the women who were central to the saga. Through the Mists of Avalon come dance and song from a time of myth, magic and romance.

Site Name: Celtic World Radio
Contact: Charlie Pecot
E-mail: cwr@radiogogy.com
URL: <http://cwr.radiogogy.com/>

Description: A progressive station featuring Celtic and World music. I define "world music" for CWR's broadcasting purposes as the following: World Music - Recorded compositions whose musical influences can audibly be traced to two or more disparate geographical regions. This is an extremely broad definition, as it does not take into account displacements in time. There are some who would argue this point, but, like I stated previously, this is CWR's definition for broadcasting purposes. This gives us the leeway to showcase material that can sound either "old" and "new". After all, good music is good music, no matter when it was created or recorded.
